

Audiologist Product Manager

Somerset, NJ ...the leader in hearing technology...

Oticon, a world leader in quality hearing care, seeks a Product Manager to be responsible for the launch and product life cycle management of our high performance hearing instruments. Reporting to the V.P. Marketing for Oticon, Inc., this challenging position requires strategic thinking, the ability to coordinate with the many facets and personnel involved in managing product launches, and the ability to develop and implement an ongoing series of promotional activities to support product sales long after initial launch. You will work as part of a dynamic marketing team in Somerset, form close ties with our national sales force, and liaise closely with Oticon Denmark product development teams. Occasional travel within the US and to Denmark is required..

The successful applicant ideally will be an audiologist with extensive experience in marketing in the hearing instrument field. Applicants with degree level qualifications in marketing and success within hearing care will also be considered.
